To Whom It May Concern,

RE: Science Meets Parliament

I am happy to support Isabel Warner in her application to attend Science Meets Parliament. I have supervised Isabel throughout her PhD, and believe she would both contribute and benefit from attending SMP.

Isabel works to spread awareness of the threat of antimicrobial resistance through her work as a Science Ambassador for our Institute. She has always shown an interest in science policy, and could gain connections with similarly focused peers through this event. It would also be a chance for her to engage directly with policymakers, and to improve and tailor her communication style from general public to a more policy focused audience.

If you have any queries, please feel free to contact me.

Kind regards,

Professor Ian Henderson
